NorthWrite – The WorkSite Company -- has partnered with Sustainable Performance Solutions to bring next generation wireless monitoring and energy saving application solutions to the market.

NorthWrite today announced that Sustainable Performance Solutions, LLC (SPS) will be working with NorthWrite to deliver solutions that allow owners of existing and new commercial and institutional properties to optimize their buildings' systems and reduce their energy consumption and carbon footprint.

"Partnering with NorthWrite allows us to offer our clients a reliable, low-cost means of validating the short simple payback periods associated with the energy reduction initiatives that we recommend and, perhaps more importantly, ensure that the benefits persist long after they've paid for themselves", said Larry Clark, principal of SPS.

"The Worksite platform and our suite of energy applications provide energy savings using easy to install, easy to understand technology" said Marc Retish, Business Development Manager, NorthWrite.

Offerings will include Energy Expert, a real-time energy use monitoring and modeling tool, based on research funded by the U.S. Department of Energy. Energy Expert tracks the implementation of broader energy savings programs, measures and verifies savings and "flags" unusual changes in energy use. Quickly recognizing potential problems and delivering notifications to stakeholders through the web-based technology, enables both the facilities staff to maintain efficient facilities and helps owners realize cost savings while simultaneously being responsible corporate citizens.
